

“Hemant Karkare: A Daughter's Memoir”: By Jui Karkare Navare (Boston, MA)

Jui Karkare Navare based in Boston with her family comprising of her husband and two daughters ages nine and six. She works full time as a software developer. She is the daughter of Late Shri Hemant Karkare and Late Smt. Kavita Karkare. Perhaps many would have heard the name of her father Hemant Karkare, who was an Indian Police Service (IPS) officer belonging to the Maharashtra cadre.

Jui studied in 8 different schools from Kindergarten to 10th grade because as an IPS officer her father was transferred to different districts in Maharashtra in the beginning of his career. Her mother was a college teacher. Both her parents were fond of literature and she inherited her passion for books from them. Her father was the counter terrorism chief of Maharashtra when he was martyred in the Mumbai Terror attacks on 26th November 2008. Soon after he laid down his life for the country, Jui decided to write a book about him as she felt it was her moral duty to share the story of an inspirational figure with the world. Finally on 25th November 2019, she released the book, "Hemant Karkare - A daughter's memoir" published by Crossword Publication, India.

The paperback book as well as the Kindle version is available on Amazon.com. In India, the book is available in all crossword bookstores all over India. The book will also be available in Marathi soon, in near future.
